ABOUT US
Scouting builds leaders. It teaches them to seek out challenges, and lead others in overcoming them. Many Scouts achieve more by the age of 18 than some people do in a lifetime. Former Scouts sit on the boards of global corporations, walk the halls of the White House and have been known to occasionally go hiking on the moon. The lessons youth learn in Scouting prepare them for their lifelong journey to improve themselves and their communities.

MULTICULTURAL OUTREACH

All youth, no matter their socioeconomic circumstances, deserve the chance to be a Scout. The Greater Alabama Council works to remove barriers, so Scouting can become a reality for young people in all parts of our community. The Scouting program reflects the diversity of neighborhoods and communities we serve. Scouting can provide anything from camp scholarships, uniforms and handbooks to transportation and even leadership of a Scout unit.
